West Ogden Protest.—The residents of West Ogden are protesting freely against the apparent neglect which they are experiencing at the hands of the street department of the city in regard to street sprinkling. They say that although the streets were kept fairly well sprinkled last year, the same has by no means been done since the completion of the viaduct, and that at the present time it is impossible for a pedestrian to reach the western end of the structure without becoming covered with dust and dirt. As this the matter of proper sprinkling will no doubt be taken up by the department and attended to.

Plain City Wins.—An interesting game of baseball was played at Plain City yesterday, resulting in a victory for that place over North Ogden by the narrow margin of 5 to 4. North Ogden has won five and lost four games during the season's playing.

Driver's drug store at 2273 Washington avenue about 11 o'clock last night, was extinguished in short order by the chemical engine of station No. 1, which made a record run to the scene. No damage worthy of mention was caused by the fire.

Women Held at Lagoon.—The ladies of the Sewing Circle, who went to Lagoon Friday, have resolved never to go there again. They attempted to take the 7:13 p. m. train for home, but the gates were locked to prevent them boarding the cars, although the gates were immediately opened to allow Salt Lake excursionists to enter. They complained to one in authority and were told that were the gatekeeper to allow them to depart he would lose his position. One lady in the party left a baby home, expecting to return in three or four hours and she pleaded with tears in her eyes to be allowed to take the early train, but was denied the privilege. When the 6:45 train from Ogden arrived at Lagoon Friday it did not stop long enough at the resort to allow those aboard to alight before the train was started again and two passengers were carried a mile beyond Lagoon before the train was finally stopped and they were compelled to walk back to the resort. Complaints against the Lagoon management are pouring in.

AGED COUPLE IS ROBBED BY BOYS

Salt Lake, June 26.—After robbing an aged couple of money sent to them from Sweden, all they had in the world, "Tubber" Lederman, a boy living in the vicinity of Forest Dale, was arrested last evening and lodged in the county jail because he could not explain satisfactorily to Special Officer Louis H. Sims how he came in possession of nine $10 gold pieces and $4.50 in silver which was found on him in his pockets. Later in the evening, as the result of a sweating by the officers, he acknowledged that the money had been stolen and implicated another boy named Daniels, stating that he had the balance of the money, about $25, in his pockets. Lederman is now being held by the police for the Daniels boy, whom they expect to secure during the day.

The capture of the youthful burglar is the result of a clever piece of detective work on the part of Special Officer Sims, whose duty consists in seeing that good order prevails at Wadsworth. Yesterday afternoon he received word that an old couple named Lundgreen, residing in Pioneer avenue, off Seventh East, had lost $150 in gold, the money having recently been sent to them from Sweden. Two hours later he was notified of their return to the house that the window was not as they left it and they immediately thought of the money, which they had put away, as they thought safely in the kitchen table drawer. An investigation soon showed the poor old couple that their little hoard was gone. The story got to the ears of Special Officer Sims, whose first suspicion is said to have fallen on the Lederman boy, and he decided to do a little private detective work. He watched him playing at some of the games at Wadsworth, until he had spent more than was usual for him. He then took the boy aside and asked him how much money he had. He replied he had a quarter and the officer watched him spend nearly 50 cents. It was then found in his pockets. It is presumed that he had $100 of the old folks' money and that he had broken one $10 gold piece and spent $5.50. If the other boy who is said to have the balance of $25 spends no more, the old couple will get nearly all their money back.

Effect of Soil on Grape.

In the Medoc country of France—famed for its red wine—the growers exercise the most scrupulous care in the selection and application of fertilizers. They understand that, while the vine is hardy, it is exceedingly sensitive and that the quality of the fruit may be injured by a very slight change in the soil.

Lucky Shot for the Hare.

While shooting at Wool, Dorset, a farmer fired at a hare and missed it. The hare made for a hedge and got caught in a wire. The farmer fired again and the shots cut the wire. The hare thus freed got away, to the chagrin of the sportsman—London Evening Standard.

Tragic.

In being a success there is no pleasure in a man does not look the part. Prof. Frewins, one of Newark's most celebrated scientists, was out walking recently when a flashy stranger said to him: "How often do the Montclair cars pass here, my boy?" Newark (N. J.) News.

Conscience.

Conscience is the amount of innate knowledge we have in us.—Victor Hugo.

The One Exception.

Everything comes to him who waits—except the waiter.—Judge.

OGDEN MERCHANT OFFERS SUGGESTIONS

Onward.

It is settled, that capitol idea. Now that it's all over and almost forgotten and the papers thought Utah have all had their say and explained how it happened or didn't happen, let's take up a few other things and talk about them. Let's work up a kinder get together sentiment and everybody talk for a greater Ogden—a booster club to help the Weber club and the civic league. Suppose the slogan is adopted "Onward, Ogden, Onward!"

I notice some two weeks ago or more the Chamber of Commerce had a meeting. In the report given of this event it was stated that an expression of opposition was manifested by some members present to the parking of Twenty-fourth street. Not being a member of this body of business men and not being present, can only form an opinion by the report given.

The Civic League of Ogden has offered some very good suggestions at various times, some of which have been adopted and carried out under our eyes. This league has secured from the council I understand, permission to park Twenty-fourth for a certain distance, at its own expense, with money provided from their own pockets. Now come some (progressive?) members of the commercial body politic and say it would be objectionable for many reasons to have grass growing in the streets of Ogden. Maybe they are right. Who shall say? It was argued that Twenty-fourth street is one of the streets where heavy traffic is carried on and in the winter time teams have to zig-zag across the street to get to the hill. I think herein is a suggestion for the humane society to get busy. Have a deputy sheriff duly appointed, with headquarters at the county court house, which overlooks this hill, and next time when these heavily loaded teams are struggling up Twenty-fourth zig-zag, until they get down on their knees, goaded on by some human whelp seated on a cushioned spring seat, instead of walking, wielding a whip bringing down on the sides of his faithful obedient friend, the horse. I have seen similar sights on Twenty-fifth street in the winter months, many times.

It would be better to have lighter loads and more thoughtful, careful drivers and more beautiful streets in our city.

Gentlemen of the Civic League, we ask that you do not abandon your ideal idea to park Twenty-fourth and give the city the benefit of other helpful suggestions. You, perhaps, will always find those who oppose any real nice, worthy, desirable thing.

I suppose you can find people in Utah who would even oppose the idea of Ogden and Weber county building a half million dollar capitol and presenting it to the state free of cost—a building that would be ample to handle the business of the state for two generations, a building of which we could be proud, a credit to this city and the entire state at large. Why not go after it?

Then there is another matter that time ago—in block twenty-five? Will somebody "who knows" tell us? I would be a good idea to GO AFTER. We don't think much about it this month when the days are long and everything is lovely and in tune with the life of the state, but the nights are short and we don't burn much money in the way of electric light. What has become of our lightning and heating proposition that gave such promise and raised such high hopes a short time ago? The foreman is well thought of the Harriman people can well afford to do very good to Ogden, considering the contribution made in the way of excessive freight rates and electric light rates.

Very respectfully,
J. T. HURST.

SHOW HATRED OF FOREIGNERS.

Chinese Historical Plays That Keep Alive Race Prejudice.

Historical plays are acted everywhere in China. They are popular in the quiet villages, the homes of the rich, in the crowded cities, and in the busy market towns. These plays are written with the object of intensifying the bitterness and contempt of the people against the foreigner. The story of plunderings and massacres of their forefathers is vividly portrayed, with all the dramatic power that the actors possess. The foreigner is represented as a monster in appearance. His face is dragged out of shape and his mouth is made to appear near his ear. His beard on one side is red and on the other blue. His eyes are fierce and staring, and murder is stamped upon his hideous features. The people of the interior, who have never come into actual contact with the foreigner, have this conception of the hated barbarian. To their minds Americans, French, English, Germans are all alike, barbarians to be destroyed.

All Right.

"That girl's all right," said the blonde girl in the dressing room, after she had looked everywhere for her sister. "The one who has just left, she's gone off with both the right overcoats and left me the left ones."

Cross Breeding a Success.

For the last few years the Japanese government has been steadily buying stallions, both thoroughbred and hackney, in England, America, France and Hungary. The government representative recently reported officially that a great improvement had already been made in the class of young stock as the outcome of crossing these imported sires with the native mares.

Going Down.

The rebellious angels had just been cast out of heaven. In the swift downward flight Lucifer overtook Beelzebub. "What's troubling you, Bub?" he called. "An old problem," answered the future foul fiend, between somersaults—"Where are you going this fall?"—Philadelphia Record.

Kisses and Matrimony.

The first stage of matrimony is when a woman kisses her husband to find out if he has been drinking. In the second stage if she does any kissing it is preliminary to asking him for money.—New York Telegram.

NOT FOR ALL TIME

DRIVER WAS DEAF ONLY ON OCCASIONS.

Candidate for Office Given Splendid Opportunity to Think Before Chance Remark Led to Divulgence of Secret.

Gov. Cobb tells an interesting story of an experience he had with a deaf man. It was during the exciting times of the pre-convention canvass of 1904. He was touring Arrostook county in search of supporters. One day he found himself in a small town several miles from the nearest railroad station. As he had concluded his labors there, he was extremely anxious to get away as soon as possible. In order to make the most advantageous use of his time it became necessary for him to rise early the next morning and drive to this nearest station. There to take the train to his next objective point.

Before retiring for the night, he arranged with the stable man to have a rig and driver ready to take him to the station. He also left word at the office of the hotel to be called.

Promptly at 5:30 the following morning the governor was roused by a resounding bang on his door. He got up, dressed, ate some breakfast and made his way to the stable. As he arrived, the horse was all harnessed, and the man who was supposed to drive, a young man, was putting on his big coat, preparatory to starting.

The stable man went over to the driver and placing his mouth close to his ear shouted out some instructions. The driver nodded and the stable man came back to the governor's room. "Deaf?" asked the governor. "Deaf," said the stableman, "why, he's so deaf he can't feel his own pulse beat."

"Can't have much conversation with him," allowed the governor. "Right," agreed the man.

The governor climbed into the rig, lit a cigar and they started. Neither said a word. The governor smoked cigar after cigar, the man drove mile after mile.

"It was a splendid chance to think," says the governor, in speaking of it.

At last they went up a big hill, and as they reached the top they got a glorious view of the country, all resplendent under the glow of the rising sun.

"Isn't that beautiful?" was the involuntary exclamation of the governor. "Yes, it is beautiful," replied the driver, calmly.

"You ought to have seen my face," says the governor. "I thought for a minute that the man was a mind reader or something like that. Then I said to him: 'Why, you told me that you were deaf!' The fellow smiled and said:

"When I went there to work, I had just come out of the woods and had a little cold, which made me a bit hard of hearing. When I got all right again, I found that they talked so much there in the stable, it would save me a lot of bother to remain deaf, so I have."

"But," concluded the governor, "he didn't play dead the rest of the drive."—Lewiston Journal.

Almost Impossible to Impose Upon Handlers of Money.

Incidentally it is interesting to note that a counterfeit which enables one to detect a counterfeit comes not from a study of counterfeits, but from a thorough and unconscious familiarity with the genuine. If a man were pointed out to you and you were told that some day another who much resembled him would try to impose upon you, you would be pretty apt to fix his features in your mind; you would not spend any time looking at other people who looked something like him, would you? And the moment the impostor appeared you would note that in this, that or the other particular he failed to meet the details of the other man's face and figure. Just so it is in the detection of counterfeits. A skillful teller in a bank, counting money rapidly, will involuntarily throw out a note which in the slightest degree departs from the well-known pattern which is so strongly impressed on his mental vision. That involuntary act will nearly always prove to have been justified, for the bill in 19 cases out of 20 will prove to be a counterfeit. It is because of this fact that when a request is received from some one to loan him a collection of counterfeits for the instruction of his cashiers, he is advised to have the young men study the genuine carefully, and there will be no trouble in detecting the bad notes.—National Magazine.

Like Nothing Else on Earth.

Night Lights of New York Are a Vision of Magnificence.

The sky line of New York is always changing. So, too, the night lights shift and grow in wonderful magnificence, creeping continually further upward toward the stars, until the lower city, grouped around the Singer tower, has become a veritable Chimborazo of glitter and glow. The little lamps that mark the dark wharves barely show. Above them the scant candles of the older city twinkle here and there, but not enough to mar the dark foreground beyond which come the palaces more gorgeous than any ever coaxed from gentile land by slaves of Aladdin's lamp. From the platform towers of the great bridge the picture sets to the best advantage. The murky view beyond the bay becomes dull and dark. The torch in Liberty's hand suddenly gleams star-like in the night, and then, like the twinkling in a kaleidoscope, the palaces begin to glitter in the gloom. There is no vision like it elsewhere in the world, yet only now and then does a bridge pedestrian pause in his hurried walk to give the spectacle a momentary glance. The usual New York care for the splendor of his town.—N. Y.
